The fact of his death came out through the sending word last night by M. d'Abzac, French Consul-ficheral, to Haron Raymond do Seilliere, who is at Newport, that his brother was dead.

M. d'Abzac declined to say this morning where Baron Roger de Seilliere died, and his death had not been reported at the Department of Vital Statistics.

Baron Roger de Seilliere was the eldest son of the famous French Baron of that name.

As a boy he had scarlet fever, and when it left him he had forever lost his hearing and the power of speech.

He was about fifty years old. He was a generous-hearted, simple gentleman, loved by everybody. His brother, Baron Raymond de seilliere, came on from Newport last night to care for his brother's nuneral.

Yesterday's meeting at Cooper Institute was not well attended, the untavorable weather and the admission fee of 25 cears being accountable for the fact. Frank Ferreid, the colored delegato of D. A. 40, presided and flugh O'bonnell was the principal speaker. He gave a history of the strike at homestead and vigorously described the Bight against the Plassftons and what followed the sum of the sum of the strike at homestead and vigorously described the Bight against the Plassftons and what followed the sum of the sum of the strike at homestead and vigorously described the Bight against the Plassftons and what followed the sum of the sum of the strike at homestead and vigorously described the Bight against the Plassftons and what followed the sum of the sum of the strike at homestead and vigorously described the Bight against the Plassftons and what followed the sum of the sum of the strike at homestead and vigorously described the Bight against the Plassftons and what followed the sum of the su

NEWARE, N. J., Aug. 20.—This morning original effects that have never been presented on the stage. The success of the piece does not depend upon these, however, Joseph J. Hild, formerly manager of the Brooklyn Thoratre, under whose auspices the work will be produced, has arranged for new scenery, costumes and mechanism. Augustin Neuville assumes the principal part.
